speaking on

“The U.S. Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA), the IRS and how it affects you”

Just how FATCA will impact US-German business relations is a matter of discussion for some, but completely unknown to most. This new tax law, enacted in 2010 by the US, is supposed to locate US taxpayers with income abroad. Germany and other European governments have agreed to apply the FATCA rules starting 2014. So we Americans living abroad still have one year-plus to find out what is going to change. Our speakers will discuss the FATCA rules and their implications on German-US business relations, e.g. the problems German corporations with US stakeholders may encounter, what US citizens living in Germany should be aware of, and how the I.R.S. is searching for Americans whose names have been forwarded by banks or other tax authorities.

Our two speakers are tax experts and members of the international Geneva Group International (GGI) alliance. Mr. Biernat's firm "Benefitax" is a German tax consulting and public audit company, focussing on cross border business and international tax issues. He also serves as international chairman of the GGI International Taxation Practice Group, with its 270 tax experts from 66 countries. In his spare time he co-authored "International Tax and Business Guide" and "Successful Business in Germany" books, among others.

Stanley C. Ruchelman is vice chairman Northern America for the GGI International Taxation Practice Group, and head of the Ruchelman Law Firm in New York City. He is a recognized expert on international taxation, having earlier served as a Senior Attorney in the IRS's Legislation & Regulations Division.
